

IN-HOUSING TRAINING

At Global Net Conferencing we understand the value of consistent improvement and development of individuals and the organisation. Keeping your staff up to date on knowledge and skills that apply to their roles can ensure that they stay competitive and current in this fast moving world.

Why In-House?

- In-House is often the cost-effective way to go when you need to train a number of staff with the same training requirements.
- You can customize your training needs to align it with your Organisational culture, work processes and strategic vision.
- Training can be conducted at your venue, and according to your date and method of choice.

In-house training may be the most cost effective solution if more than four members of your organisation require training.

All of the courses listed on our website can be delivered in-house. We also have an extensive list of additional in-house courses available; our courses can be tailored to meet the exact requirements of your organisation.

PARTICULARS:

- Numbers: In-house training programmes are available to up to 15 delegates.
- Pricing: In-house training prices are based on the unique training solution that you require. Costs are negotiated when we discuss and agree your tailored programme with you. Contact us on the details given below if you require more information on how our tailored pricing works.
- Flexibility: Any aspect of our existing course programmes can be tailored to suit you. When you book onto your in-house course, we will contact you to discuss your specifications. You can:
- If you are looking for training that includes organisation-specific learning objectives and discussion, as well as specialist guidance from experts in your sector, then Global Net Conferencing Training in-house courses will suit you.
